

Complex network methods for ecosystem networks: What is the next?

MARTA SALES

I will talk about different analyses in which we have applied network methodologies to analyze the structure of networks within ecosystems. In particular I will talk about the analysis of the structure of food webs using a modular approach. Then I will introduce a new set of methodologies for network inference and explain what is the potential that these methods hold for the analysis of interactions within ecosystems.